"THE WHOLE WAY"

An acute point in labor relations is further sharpened by the Ford contract with United Auto Workers union. In view of the fact that the point is being stressed deliberately in announcement of the contract and that the way in which the contract finally was made—after a long and bitter struggle for advantage—have focused nationwide attention on the result, future developments will be studied carefully for procedural hints on labor relations in other fields.

In a word, the Ford Co. has given a labor union virtually everything it says it wants, a closed shop and the checkoff. It has done this in the hope of obtaining peaceable and uninterrupted production. "We hope very sincerely," said Edsel Ford, president of the company, "that it attains the ends sought."

R. J. Thomas, president of the union, said, "It gives the union the authority it must have to fulfill its responsibilities under the contract"—referring specifically to the union shop clause.

The argument of union spokesmen has been that if their organizations were given what they asked for, the result would be harmony. The thing they have asked for is full responsibility and the complete confidence of managements; i. e., the privilege of dealing with management not as outsiders but as partners in production. Certainly it must be viewed as ironic that in the automobile industry their desire has been satisfied by the company that stood out against them longest. "We have decided to go the whole way," the company declares.

It scarcely needs to be said that in so doing the United Auto Workers union has been placed on trial. The principles it embraces can be advanced immeasurably or retarded hopelessly by the manner in which its victory is employed.

EXCEPTIONS TO THE 8-HOUR DAY

By lifting the 8-hour day restriction on labor employed on defense construction in the Panama Canal zone, President Roosevelt has thrown the policy of a limited work day open to discussion.

Contrary to a common impression, federal law does not fix an 8-hour maximum for government work or for establishments in interstate commerce. The maximum may be exceeded by payment of overtime rates.

The result, in all instances where labor costs are fixed rigidly by contract, is the same as if there were no flexibility, of course. An employer who has figured labor cost at $50.00 cannot pay overtime rates and stay within his production cost estimate.

It is obviously true that unless ways and means can be established for lifting the restriction thus imposed on national production for defense, the defense effort cannot reach its potential maximum proportions. As has been pointed out often, France, which had bound itself with rigid restrictions on labor, simply could not hope to compete with Germany in production of defense materials. The United States must not make the same mistake.

The easy solution is the wider use of so-called escalator clauses in defense contracts, giving management production cost flexibility in case of rising labor cost. Whether or not this is the best solution may be questioned. It preserves a standard of hours at public expense. The question is whether or not the standard is so untouchable that it should not fit itself be flexible when there is a production emergency. Taxpayers are not easily persuaded that the cost of defense production should be increased because of an 8-hour-a-day or a 40-hour-a-week policy maintained at public expense. Mr. Roosevelt has indicated that he, too, is giving some thought to the possibility that there may be a more equitable solution than the one now in use.

MICAWBARISM

The question of policy raised by the war department's recommendation that the national guard be kept on active duty beyond one year goes much deeper than the legalities entailed.

The United States has been forced by circumstances to train an army—a large army. It does not know when the army will be needed, or if it ever will be needed. Unlike Germany, it has no specific objective, other than the objective of not being caught unprepared. It does not know whether it should be preparing a reserve of trained manpower or a standing army to be brought to its peak at the end of a specified term.

It is the victim of a Micawbarism. It is waiting for something to turn up, not knowing what the something is likely to be. Nevertheless, by the rub that there is no such thing as being too well prepared to deal with a military emergency, it seems plain that until there no longer is an emergency, the United States would be tempting trouble to demobilize so important a part of its developing military strength.

A BEAR BY THE TAIL

The easy assumption that friction between Joseph Stalin's Russian regime and Adolf Hitler's German regime would quickly pulverize the former is not being challenged, but the grounds for challenge are there.

In the world war, Russia was a push over for Germany's better equipped, better trained, better managed troops. But Russia takes a lot of pushing over. Germany succeeded in toppling the czarist regime and precipitating revolution, but all the time this was happening, its war effort against the more formidable enemy on the western front was being diminished in direct ratio.

It may be true, as skeptics firmly insist, that in the end Russia will capitulate and, like Italy, move helplessly into the Nazi "new order." But it always is risky business to seize a bear by the tail, even a Russian bear that doesn't put up much of a struggle.

DOCTORS STUDYING NEW PROBLEMS

Scientists Also Consider New Principles

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

During and after the last war we heard a number of pronouncements to the effect that in spite of all the evil some good had come out of the terrible struggle, in that we had made progress in many fields of medicine and surgery.

I confess these statements left me cold. I know of nothing in my own field that was developed as a result of the war and nothing of any theoretical or remote one.

Food Research

The food problem has also brought some research in the field of the endocrine glands, attempting by the administration of these extracts to make animals grow faster, produce offspring more rapidly, breed oftener, produce twins instead of a single offspring.

Vegetables and soil contain all the chemicals that go into the make-up of the edible flesh of animals, but they have to go through the animal economy first. Is it possible to shorten this process and, by heating vegetable chemically, make them equal to animal protein in nutritive value? Can we break the old cycle of soil, sun, rain, time, leaf, animal digestion and metabolism, meat and food? English scientists are working on this.

The British have also proved what biology and psychology already knew—that increasing hours of work beyond a certain limit results not in an increase but in an absolute decrease in output.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. M. V.: — "For years I have suffered from stomach ulcer. I have never found any medication that helped until lately; I have been taking a tablet containing bismuth subnitrate, heavy magnesium oxide, sodium bicarbonate, and pancreatin. This relieves me. Could these ingredients do any harm or are they habit-forming?"

Answer: — They could not do any harm and are not habit-forming. They are the tried and true remedies for ulcer and I am surprised you have not found them before.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

"Nice of Kanamura to leave me my gun," North commented when he slipped on his shoulder holster. "Come along, old chap—I'm pinning for a breath of Hawaii's justly famed pure air," reared Kilgour as he strolled to the window to look out at the Koolau Range looming black and ragged, save where the moon had silvered certain volcanic peaks.

"My word, look at that moon! Isn't it—"

Kilgour's speech was cut short when a bullet sang through the open window and with a vicious thump! buried itself in the bedroom wall, all but ceasing his scarp. It had come from a silenced.

The Englishman, who had dropped to the floor, blinked up at North, who was standing alert and somber-eyed across the room. Kilgour laughed a particularly mirthless laugh. "I say, old lad," he said. "You surely are in demand."

"The Floating Lily" certainly believed that name when Captain Hugh North and Bruce Kilgour presently halted before it. It was a wide-fronted, two-story stucco structure. Once tinted a deplorable shade of pale green, it resembled a lily neither in color, odor nor purity.... especially around 3 a. m.

For a few minutes the two men, inconspicuous in their dark clothes, sauntered down the street, surveying with tired disgust a succession of tawdry dance halls, tiny Chinese shops, tenements, and dives.

This quarter had only one thing in common with the rest of Honolulu—its patent excitement over the threatened war. All along the side walks knots of loafers—Chinese, Portuguese, Filipinos and Europeans—gesticulated and yelled at one another. The Japanese, who usually crowded this quarter, were noticeably few.

The two intelligence men soon teetered up to the Floating Lily, hats crammed loosely on the backs of their heads, hair over eyes, and otherwise giving a convincing counterfeited of two teed-up tourists in search of amusement.

"Hi, Jack," North shouted to two sailors who came reeling out of the Floating Lily. "Anythin' doing in there?"

"Doin'? Sure! Besh lit' place y' ever seen—"

"But I say, it's nearly three o'clock," Kilgour had chosen the solemn and dignified drunken pose.

"The bally shop isn't shutting up?"

Swaying a little, the two sailors made violent gestures of denial. "Shut up? Now?—don't shut up 'til last bozo passes out."

"Hear that swing, will ya? The ban's beginnin' to get hot." The smaller of the two waved an uncertain tattooed hand towards the Floating Lily. There was no denying that the blaring jazz inside was reaching fever heat.

"C'm on back in, Jack, an' show us the ropes," North invited. "We're new in town—want to see the works—see? C'm on, we'll blow you guys to some oaks, or maybe—Say, Jack," North's arm went affectionately about the other's sun-reddened neck, "ever wash your tonsils with a Kanaka Moon cocktail?"

"Cocktail?" the bigger man made that vulgar but expressive noise known as the Bronx Cheer. "Nix, not for baby—gimme straight oke ever time. Whaddya say, Gus?"

"Okay, Freddy." Swaying slightly, Gus thrust his arm through Kilgour's. And so the quartet lurched in through a pair of swinging doors.

"Gimme a drink," grunted Kilgour, waving his arms a little aimlessly. "I jolly well want to get squiff-o."

Like harpes, a swarm of shrill-voiced women flung themselves upon the newcomers. For the most part they were utterly repulsive.

The air was gray with the reek of tobacco, Joe's sticks, in holders along the wall, attempted feebly to dispel some of the fumes of cheap perfume and poor liquor.

"C'm on, podner," North's friend insisted, "they's a good table over in that booth. Hi, there, Luisa!"

That frizzled and painted damsel laughed shrilly. "You coma back again?"

Luisa swung near to greet Gus while skillfully making room for the gyrations of other dancers.

"Hey, Soo Lee!" Freddy smacked the glass-marked table a whack that made its legs tremble. "Four oaks—wiki-wiki ding, savvy?"

A tired-looking Chinese waiter waddled off with the order. Then North shoved a five-dollar bill across to Freddy.

"There y'are, Buddy, slip that to the band. Tell 'em to play 'Sain' Louie Blues'."

"Okay, Buddy!" Joyously the two gobs became lost in the varicolored crowds of dancers.

"Well, this is sweet-scented!" Kilgour remarked. "I suppose the next step is to meet a couple of baggages so we can ask them if they knew the late lamented!"

"Careful!" North had suddenly let his head sag forward as though drowsy with liquor and was peering between his fingers.

"Ouch, I say!" Kilgour protested when North kicked his shin.

"Look!" hissed the intelligence captain.

Groggily, the English agent turned to observe the door at the far side of the dance hall and saw Baron von Renter, immaculately gross, followed by a servile yellow head-waiter.

"Well, strike me!" breather Kilgour. "The blighter's slumming, too."

"Look!" North's disheveled black head indicated two men who appeared immediately afterwards through that same door. "Take a good look at those two men back of Von Renter—especially the plug-ugly with the big bruises on the side of his head."

While the band burst into the "St. Louis Blues," North watched Von Renter, stiff-backed and coldly disdainful, being joined by two powerful men who had waited outside that door through which the Prussian steel master had appeared. Apparently bodyguards, they immediately fell in to Baron von Renter's right and left.

On this trio, however, North wasted hardly a second glance. It was on the two seafaring men who followed that he fixed his attention. They were puzzling him for, though dressed in grimy merchant officers uniforms, there was in their carriage a hint of drilled stiffness which, as a rule, only military men possess.

The foremost, a blunt-featured giant at least six feet two, was distinguished by bristling blond mustaches which swept off to either side of his broad and shiny snub nose. Never, North was thinking, had he seen blonder hair than that of this stolid seafarer who, strangely enough, walked without the long, rolling gait of a sailor. Moreover, that blond hair was clipped very short, and what particularly interested North was the fact that in several places angry red and blue bruises showed very distinctly through the stubble.

Swiftly he made an accurate mental inventory of the figure: clothes, dark blue serge, gray turtle-neck sweater, both smeared with grease; a sheath knife such as is carried by nearly all non-Anglo-Saxon sailors; heavy, badly made cowhide boots of a sort associated with European peasants. By and large, a very interesting get-up.

North's interest grew apace when he noted on the side of the second man's brutal red face a dark purple bruise; he, too, had recently received a hard bump. How?

Then the blond giant in the lead halted and, narrowing his small, pale blue eyes, peered through the eddying smoke at North's table.

With evil premonition, the intelligence captain's eyes flickered sideways to realize that Kilgour had unconsciously exposed most of his face. Breathless, North watched the blond giant's wide features and on them saw suspicion give way to alarm, and alarm to menace.

"Quick!" North muttered. "That big fellow with the bruised head—know him?"

It was already too late for Kilgour to get a good look at the merchant officer, for the latter was lumbering hurriedly after Von Renter who had disappeared through the front door of the Floating Lily.

"Don't think so," said the British agent.

"Too bad, because he certainly seemed to know you," North asserted grimly.

LITTLE CHATS ON PUBLIC NOTICES

By J. E. Pollard, Journalism Professor,
Ohio State University

Making Haste Slowly

Talk about the law's delays is an old story. For some years, the bench and the bar, with the help of the lawmakers, have been taking steps to speed up our legal machinery. As a result many of our legal processes have been streamlined to some extent and the work of the courts quickened thereby.

But there is one phase of the law in which few such changes have been made or are likely to be made. This is the provision for a reasonably long period that must elapse after notice is given before the proposed action can take effect. The very purpose of the public notice is to give all persons affected by it ample notice or warning so that they can protect their rights. The minimum time may be from two weeks to 90 days or more.

This helps to delay a pending action or holds up a final settlement. Sometimes the delay not only seems needless but is actually inconvenient to some of the persons concerned. Even so, the basic principle is sound: to give due notice as far as possible. This is why various notices must be published a specified number of times and at stated intervals.

Long experience has shown that where the rights of others are involved this is both right and necessary. In such matters what seems to be the law's delay is really a safeguard. Any other course might easily be at the expense of the rights of others. As a chief medium in serving this legal purpose, the newspaper is admirably adapted.

Answer

Why does the Servel
Electrolux Gas Refrigerator

stay silent last longer?

it has no moving parts to wear!

"No moving parts" means:

- ✓ Permanent Silence
- ✓ Permanently Low Operating Cost
(less than 2¢ a day)
- ✓ Nothing To Wear Out
- ✓ Longer Life
- ✓ Savings That Pay For It

For economy, long life, low operating cost, and permanently silent operation, you just can't match Servel Electrolux. In the Servel Electrolux Gas Refrigerator a tiny gas flame does all the work, takes the place of all moving parts. Nothing to wear out—nothing to get out of order—complete silence, permanently. Small wonder that more than 1,500,000 American families prefer the Servel Electrolux Gas Refrigerator! Small wonder that new thousands are changing to permanent Silence!

Modern as your new spring hat—convenient as the new "clutchless cars"—economical as a Scotch cook—silent as the Sphinx, Electrolux is the buy today. See Servel Electrolux before you buy any refrigerator.

Will Sell to Russia

pointed out that the Russo-German conflict has ended the danger of such supplies reaching the Reich via the Trans-Siberian railroad. The sealing of the route, officials noted in passing, also cuts off the substantial supplies which Germany was reported to be receiving recently from Japan.

For the present, the question of lease-lend aid was considered hypothetical. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles explained yesterday that until such aid is requested, the American government is withholding a decision on the subject.

PLAN HOUSES FOR DEFENSE WORKERS

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Under a housing expansion program approved by President Roosevelt, defense workers in the vicinity of Ravenna, O., where the government is constructing a $30,000,000 arsenal, will also be built in Ravenna and Newton Falls.

Port Clinton, O., was also awarded 60 trailer units under a temporary housing program, and the President approved Mansfield, O., as a locality in which moderately priced houses may be financed under federal housing administration insurance permitting underwriting of 80 per cent of the house cost where housing shortages are found to be threatening defense activities.

The dormitories, Palmer said, will be of demountable construction so that they can be removed to neighboring communities for low-rent housing purposes after the emergency.

The plan calls for construction of 150 houses in Warren, O., 225 in Ravenna and Newton Falls, these to be demountable. An additional 125, of conventional construction, will also be built in Ravenna and Newton Falls.

C. F. Palmer, defense housing coordinator, said 500 homes and dormitory units will be constructed in the Ravenna area, with 300 trailer units to be supplied to house workers until the homes and dormitories are erected.

Storehouse Planned
WASHINGTON, June 24.—The war department today allotted $2,275,000 for construction of a storehouse at the Erie proving grounds, Lacarne, O., where guns, scout cars and other vehicles are tested.

WILL MANAGE HOME FOR PRESBYTERIANS

WOOSTER, June 24.—Dr. Harry W. Barr, pastor of Urbana's First Presbyterian church for 20 years, is resigning Sept. 1 to become manager at the Presbyterian homes for the aged at Sidney.

This was announced today at the 60th session of the Presbyterian Synod of Ohio, which earlier elected as moderator Dr. Homer G. McMullen, pastor of Kenton's first church, to succeed the Rev. Jesse Halsey of Cincinnati.

Dr. Barr for many years has been chairman of the homes' trustees. In the managership there he succeeds the Rev. E. P. Montgomery, who will retire.

Home-Stretch Spurt Any Time You Say

PAYS YOUR GAS TAX FOR YOU
At present Federal tax rates, the savings on gasoline effected by Compound Carburetion are usually more than enough to pay Federal taxes on the gas you buy.

PLENTY of men can run a mile around a cinder track.

But those who win races—and championships—are the ones who can turn on the plus when it's needed.

Probably that's why you hear so much these days about Buick's exclusive Compound Carburetion.

It gives you an engine that will cruise right along with the distance runners and pile up plenty of miles for your gasoline money.

No fooling—owners write in to tell us of mileage as much as 10% to 15% greater than previous Buicks gave.

But any time you want plus-performance—a home-stretch spurt—just step down on the gas treadle.

Instantly, you send an extra carburetor into action. You step up the supply of both gasoline and air—and virtually give yourself a bigger engine to get you places in a hurry.

That means thrills—and plenty of them.

It means, also, efficiency—proper use of every drop of fuel without useless waste.

It bears out the Big Point about this 1941 Buick—that on size, style, comfort, room and ability, it's far and away the top value of the year.

To see how true that is, just go size one up against the low delivered prices your nearest Buick dealer is asking.

Mullins And Recreation Win In Class A Softball Games

DEFEAT CARROLLS, DRISCOLLWOOD TO TAKE EARLY LEAD

Greenisen Homers While Stratton Triples In Mullins' Win

Mullins added one more to their string of victories by defeating the Carroll club last night, 6-1. A triple with one on by Stratton in the fifth and a homer by Greenisen with one on in the sixth, helped boost the Mullins score. Both teams gathered five hits but Mullins had only one error to five for the Carrolls. Guapone and Fisher were the pitchers.

In the second game, Recreation avenged a first round 4-2 defeat by coming back the second round, and shading Driscollwood, 3-2. Zines held the Driscolls to five hits, fanned three, walked two and got one hit. Phillips struck out one and walked two.

Both teams lead the second round of the city loop with two victories and no defeats.

Church League
In an upset church league game, St. Paul's nosed out the first round champions, the Trinitys, 9-7, last night. P. Nocera, hurling for St. Paul's, allowed the Trinitys only five hits. A homer by Boughton aided the Trinity score.

The YPOC swamped the Presbys in the second game at the park last night, 11-5. The Presbyterians collected more errors than hits, 7 mistakes to 6, as they went down before an 8-run barrage.

BABE RUTH PLAYS TY COBB IN GOLF TILT FOR CHARITY

Two Baseball Immortals Will Play At New England Boys' Town

NEWTON, Mass., June 24—He's older, he's grayer and a good 30 pounds fatter than in 1927, the year he highlighted one of the greatest careers in baseball by hitting an all-time high of 60 homers, but he's the same George Herman (Babe) Ruth with a new competitive zest.

And that is to take Tyrus Raymond (The Peach) Cobb, one of the few other baseball immortals who can be mentioned in the same breath, over the hurdles tomorrow in their 18-hole charity golf exhibition here on the re-vamped and greatly stiffened Commonwealth course.

"I always have wanted to be numbered among the very select few able to give Ty a drubbing at anything," The Babe said yesterday after he put together a seven-over 79 for his first trip over the scene of their pending duel.

"No Boasting"

"I never have seen him play and I'm not going to do any boasting about the outcome. But I have enough faith in my own golfing ability to suggest that we make a friendly wager before we tee off. "For years Ty has been broadcasting that he can beat me at any game, anywhere. All I know about that is that he had a chance to prove that on a golf course last year but passed it up. We had him up to dinner one night and I suggested that we play a round the next morning. He agreed and then called it off by remembering an important business engagement. I learned later he spent the day at the World Fair."

The Babe beat Ty to the scene of their novel struggle, to raise funds for the Golden Rule farm, the New England version of Boys-town, at Franklin, N. H., by 24 hours. The latter is not due here until today.

Phils Will Try To Keep Reds Stymied

CINCINNATI, June 24—The six other National League clubs may hang out the welcome sign when the Philadelphia Phillies come to town, but the Cincinnati Reds have no reason to do so.

The Phils, who meet the Reds in a single game today and a double-header tomorrow, have beaten the champions in four of five meetings, but are on the short end of the record with every other club.

Neither manager was decided upon a hurler for today. Bill McKechnie hesitated between Junior Thompson and Jim Turner for the Reds, and Doc Prothro contemplated either Wait Beck or Frank Hoerst.

Season 40 Per Cent Over

The Reds spent yesterday resting and taking stock—and well they might, for with 40 per cent of the season gone they sit in fourth place on the 500 percentage mark where no one expected them to be at "play ball" a little more than two months ago.

There's just one reason for the disappointing showing. It isn't club discord, and it isn't injuries—though the Reds have had their share of the latter. The puny .224 Redleg club batting average tells the story.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

Pinch-hitting for Eddie Brietz

NEW YORK, June 24.—(The Special News Service)—The Yankees are going to do things up right July 4, when they'll unveil the Lou Gehrig memorial.... Special souvenir tickets are being printed and the fans will get a likeness of Lou on their rain checks.... Lou Nova is going up to the Maine woods to toughen up for the Louis fight, which probably will be judged treason to California's famous climate.... One-eyed Connolly, the gate crasher, has been named as custodian of the gate for the American Legion baseball championships in Kansas.

Golf Reparatice

Said G. H. Ruth to Tyrus Cobb, "If I can't lick you, I'm a slob." Said Tyrus Cobb to old Babe Ruth, "Maybe, Pal, you speak the truth." Guy Lombardo, the orchestra leader, not only races his own speedboat but does his own repair work.... If Tommy Harmon acts like himself in making that movie, "Harmon of Michigan," there'll be a lot of badly-bruised actors around Hollywood when he gets through.... Bo Molenda is giving up football coaching to learn how to be a good baseball umpire, which he already is.... Nels Stewart, the old hockey star, is trying to get his race horse, Smoke Signal, reinstated.... Smoke Signal ran under several names before it came into Stewart's keeping. Nels says being barred from the tracks hasn't affected the horse's appetite.

Today's Guest Star

Nixon Denton, Cincinnati Times-Star: "Every once in a while the Scotch reveal that they aren't as close as painted. Society news, published in the Times-Star, stated that Bill McKechnie was going to give his daughter away."

Whadda Ya Know?

Ed Mitchell, sports ed. of the Durham (N. C.) Herald, is asking his readers when and how the seventh-inning stretch originated in baseball.... What's your explanation, boys?... Peter T. Farley of the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times sport staff and author of that piece about Hugh Mulcahy in "baseball magazine," is only 19 years old and William Whelton wants to know if that doesn't give him a record for youthful sports writing.... And our own Gayle Talbot asks how come the Yanks are up there fighting for the lead with one pitcher who can show an outstanding record.

On the Nose

The day before the Conn-Louis fight, Jersey Jones, drum-beater at the Louis Camp, told reporters to pick Joe in the 13th.... "He considers 13 his lucky number," explained Jersey. "He trained here 13 days and was born on the 13th day."

Picked Squad Plays Youngstown At Park

A picked Salem softball team will do battle tomorrow night with the General Fireproofing softball team at Youngstown at Centennial park. The game, to be played at 6, is the second match between the two teams. In an early season game at Youngstown the Salemites walked their hosts, 11-8.

MUSKINGUM COACH PLANS NO CHANGES

Howard Kissell Appointed Recently. Will Keep Holcomb's Staff

FINDLAY, O., June 24.—Howard Kissell, newly-appointed director of athletics and football coach at Muskingum college, said today he planned no changes in the coaching staff at the New Concord institution when he takes over this fall.

Kissell, coach of Findlay college's football and baseball teams the past five years, was named to the Muskingum job yesterday by President Robert N. Montgomery. He succeeds Stu Holcomb, who resigned last spring to become football coach at Washington and Jefferson at Washington, Pa.

Kissell, whose Findlay baseball team laid claim to the Ohio conference championship this spring on a record of eight victories and two defeats, said he would coach football and baseball at Muskingum.

Bill Moore will be retained as line coach, and Mac Mariner will remain as head basketball and track coach, Kissell said.

President Homer R. Dunathan of Findlay said no successor for Kissell had been chosen.
A 1931 graduate of Purdue university where he played end on a Big Ten championship eleven, Kissell will not be stepping into "strange shoes" when he follows Holcomb to Muskingum. He succeeded Stu as coach at Findlay five years ago.

DODGERS WIN AS INJURED PITCHER RETURNS TO TEAM

Fitzsimmons, Last Year's Sensation, Shows No Sign Of Injuries

BY GAYLE TALBOT

Associated Press Sports Writer
What might prove one of the most significant victories of the National league race was scored by Fat Freddie Fitzsimmons of the Dodgers yesterday when he licked Pittsburgh, 9 to 4, in one of the day's two big-league games.

The win did more than just boost Brooklyn within a half-game of the idle St. Louis Cards. It afforded almost positive proof that Fitzsimmons, the wonder veteran who won 16 and lost only two last year, is at last ready to begin taking a weekly turn for a team that has pennant fever.

This means that the Cardinals from now on have even a more desperate job on their hands trying to fight off the MacPhails. Fitz, who will turn 40 about a month from now, showed no sign yesterday of the sprained back that kept him from starting a game until May 26. The Pirates nicked him for seven hits in as many innings before he yielded to a pinch-hitter in the eighth, but he was steady in the right spots.

The score was tied yesterday in the eighth, 4 to 4, when Fitz gave way to a pinch-hitter, Herman Franks, the young catcher who recently joined the Dodgers from Montreal. Two were on base. Franks lofted a home run into the upper right-field stand, and that was that.

Meanwhile, at Chicago, Claude Passeau of the Cubs and Hal Schumacher of the Giants hooked up in one of the season's most brilliant duels, with Passeau the eventual victim, 1 to 0. Schumacher allowed only four hits as Passeau held the Giants to three blows.

The American league, after a day's rest, swung back into action today with opportunity staring a hole in the second-place Yankees. In the midst of a tremendous hitting streak, Joe DigaMiglo & company opened a series against the wobbly Browns at Yankee stadium, while the league-leading Cleveland Indians faced the thunder clubs of the third-place Boston Red Sox.

ASSERTS U. S. MUST HIKE POWER OUTPUT

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Leland Olds, chairman of the federal power commission, fears Germany, already ahead of the United States in electric power production, may acquire great additional sources of power if successful in her military campaign against Russia.

Urging construction of the St. Lawrence navigation and power project, Olds told the house rivers and harbors committee yesterday that a major task confronting this country in its defense program was "outmatching Hitler in terms of complete industrial mobilization."

Electric power, he added, was "an essential element" of such mobilization. "Few people realize," he said, "the additional power facilities Germany has gained in taking over some of the small countries of Europe." He estimated the reich had "annexed" about 100 billion kilowatt hours of electric energy by conquest and by 1943 would have an output of 200 billion kilowatt hours compared with an estimated 170 billions in the United States.

Asked by Representative Bender (R-Ohio) what advantages there would be in the adoption of daylight saving throughout the country, Olds replied it would be beneficial in conserving power only if carried out in the winter as well as the summer.

He estimated year around daylight saving might effect a saving of 350,000 kilowatts.

EDEN HAILS REDS IN COMMON CAUSE

Urges Britains To Forego Politics In War On Adolf Hitler

of Anglo-Soviet relations we were always retarded by the attention paid by the Soviet union to observance of its pact with Germany."

Solace From Turkey

Eden also said that "the Turkish government made it plain in the last 24 hours that the Anglo-Turkish treaty stands intact—that it stands first and foremost in their engagements."

(Turkey, a non-belligerent ally of Britain, on June 18 signed a non-aggression accord with Germany.)

Britain had been kept fully informed of the negotiations leading up to the signing of the German-Turkish agreement, Eden said, but added "we should naturally have preferred if no such treaty had been concluded."

The attack on Russia, he said, was a return to Hitler's "Mein Kampf" policy and was a clear indication that "Hitler hopes to break the military power of that vast state in order to free his eastern frontier for the duel with our own land."

The ultimate Nazi target, he said, was the British empire which Hitler "rightly regards as the chief obstacle in his path to world domination."

Eden said Britain's economic and military assistance to Russia would be on a mutual and reciprocal basis.

CATHOLICS LAUNCH EUCHARIST RALLY

ST. PAUL, June 24.—Pontifical mass by the papal legate, Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, today opened the ninth National Eucharistic congress.

Under sunny skies, thousands of Roman Catholics gathered in the state fair grounds for the solemn open air ceremony. It was designed to inspire the faithful for the three-day program including discussion of such topics as youth, the family, religion, charity and labor.

Discussions of methods of furthering Catholic ideals and applying the teachings of Jesus Christ to current labor problems drew major attention at conferences beginning today.

In the last named, labor was expected to congregate one of the largest assemblies.

Presided over by Father Francis J. Gilligan, of St. Paul, the sectional meeting upon labor was opened with admonition in an address prepared for delivery by the priest, long a figure in the oft-turbulent labor scene of the northwest.

"While the Catholic church defends the right of private property, it also defends the right of the worker to a wage that will permit support of a wife and family in decent comfort. The Catholic church also looks upon working people as having the natural right to form unions and to bargain collectively."
